- 16.

Remember the consumer who decides to act upon a legal guarantee of conformity:

- The benefit of two years from the delivery of the goods to act;
- Can choose between the repair or the replacement of the product subject to the conditions of cost under Article L211-9 of the Consumer Code;
- Is requested to prove the existence of the lack of conformity of the product in the six months following the delivery of the product. This period is extended to twenty-four months from 18 March 2016.

The legal guarantee of conformity applies regardless of any commercial guarantee granted. The consumer may decide to implement the guarantee against hidden defects of the object sold within the meaning of Article 1641 of the Civil Code. In this case, the consumer can choose between cancelling the sale or reducing the purchase price in accordance with Article 1644 of the Civil Code.

Reminder of the provisions of the Consumer Code:

- Article L211-4 of the Consumer Code: The seller must deliver goods in conformity with the contract and is liable for defects of conformity existing upon delivery. The seller answers also to lack of conformity resulting from packaging, instructions for assembly or installation where the latter was part of the contract or the seller was responsible for it being carried out.
- Article L211-5 of the Consumer Code: To conform under contractual requirements, the product must:
  - 1) Be suitable for the purpose usually associated with such a product and, where applicable:
    - match the description given by the seller and possess the qualities that the seller has presented to the buyer in the form of a sample or model;
    - present features that a buyer might reasonably expect given the public statements made by the seller, the producer or his representative, particularly in advertising or labelling;
  - 2) Or have the characteristics defined by mutual agreement by the Parties or be suitable for any particular purpose required by the buyer, made known to the seller and accepted by the buyer.
- Article L211-12 of the Consumer Code: Action resulting from lack of conformity lapses two years after delivery of the good.

Reminder of the Civil Code:

- Article 1641 of the Civil Code: The seller is obliged to guarantee against hidden defects relating to the product sold which render it unfit for use (or diminishing its use) resulting in the fact that the buyer would not have purchased the product or would have paid a lower price if the defects had been known.
- Article 1648 of the Civil Code 1: Action resulting from latent defects must be brought by the purchaser within two years from the discovery of the defect. The products that we sell, especially artisan products, often have the characteristics of the natural materials used in manufacturing them. These characteristics can include variations in grain, texture, knots and colour. These variations may not be considered as defects or damage. On the contrary, you must count on their presence and appreciate them. We select only products of the highest quality, but natural characteristics are inevitable and should be accepted as part of the individual appearance of the product.

The provisions in this Clause shall neither affect your statutory rights as a consumer, nor your right to withdraw from the Contract.

17. The purchase and/or use of the Card entails the full acceptance of these terms and conditions, which have been made available to the purchaser of the Card at the time of the purchase in ZARA store and on www.zara.com, and which are also available at ZARA stores and/or at the www.zara.com website.
18. The purchase and use conditions available on www.zara.com website also govern the purchase and use of the Card made via this website.
